Taxi boss aims to loosen limo rules, let Uber in

Regulators' friend or foe? App backers have faced controversy elsewhere

JEREMY NOLAIS
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

City limo rules could soon be relaxed, a move that a top regulator said Tuesday would pave the way for the controversial Uber app to operate in the city.

Marc Halat, Calgary's chief livery officer, said his team is drafting a proposal that will go before the volunteer-run Taxi and Limousine Advisory Committee Nov. 21 that would provide inroads to better use luxury vehicles to aid patrons during peak-hour demand, namely weekend evenings.

Halat told Metro on Tuesday the move would include proposals to reduce the mandatory minimum fee luxury drivers are required to charge their passengers — currently $84.60 — and amend a requirement that all rides in such vehicles be arranged a minimum of 30 minutes ahead of time.

Halat has said previously that both rules were put in place to protect the earnings of common taxi drivers. He wouldn't delve into specifics of the proposal because it would be "premature," but said it would address concerns from officials behind the ride-for-hire Uber app.

"There is an opportunity to tap into that one area to improve our peak-hour service," he said of the luxury-vehicle supply. "People shouldn't be waiting and unsure if a taxi is going to come and then potentially drive themselves home while impaired."

A trial of the UberBlack sedan service was run for one weekend only in Calgary last year, but regulators found that some of the limo drivers using the app to arrange rides lacked proper insurance and even driver's licences.

Still, the app's backers have said Calgarians frustrated by the current state of cab service would benefit greatly from their tech offering.

Spokeswoman Lauren Altmin did not address questions about the potential rule changes, but said in an email: "Uber connects users with different transportation options, tailored to the demand of each city and what we know without question is that consumers and drivers are clamouring for more and better transportation options in Calgary."

TLAC can suggest amendments to the limo proposal, but cannot block it from going before city council, which ultimately approves all livery regulation changes.

‘MIRACLE MOLECULE’ SUPERCHARGES CIRCULATION, PROMISING BETTER BLOOD FLOW, BLOOD PRESSURE AND INCREASED MENTAL CLARITY & STAMINA!

Are you concerned with high blood pressure or cholesterol, a lack of stamina and energy, a dip in libido and physical performance,or the increase of “senior moments?” The answer to living without these health concerns has been discovered in what scientists are calling the most important health breakthrough of our time. The discovery starts with nitric oxide (N-O)!

OVER 40 LOSING CRUCIAL RESERVES

N-O is a natural substance produced by the body that has amazing effects on health and circulation. The American Heart Association published one of many studies showing that many people over 40 don’t produce enough N-O. In fact, your body produces less than half of what it did at 20.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNING DISCOVERY

Three researchers received the prestigious Nobel Prize for this discovery. One of the winners says, “There may be no disease process where this miracle molecule does not have a protective role”.

GOOD NEWS FOR BOOMERS!

Researchers reported that N-O helps with energy levels, blood pressure, cholesterol, joint discomfort, and assisted in strengthening the immune system.

90-SECOND CIRCULATION BOOSTER

Based on the research of Dr. Nathan S. Bryan, PhD, who lectures to doctors around the world about Nitric Oxide, Neogenis® Labs has created a revolutionary lozenge, called Neo 40 daily, that makes it easy to restore N-O levels. This “fast-dissolve” lozenge restores your N-O to youthful levels by dissolving within 90 seconds and begins to work immediately, which leads to better circulation, for many in as little as 20 minutes.

BETTER CIRCULATION TO WHOLE BODY

Better circulation helps increase stamina, maximizes metabolism, helps manage stress and maintains healthy sexual function. Healthy N-O levels also promote better blood pressure and cholesterol as a result of improved circulation to all major organs.

SURPRISE BENEFITS FOR MEN & WOMEN

“Adequate amounts of Nitric Oxide insure sufficient amounts of blood to flow to the extremities, especially the penis, resulting in an erection. The same applies to women; without proper blood flow to the clitoris, orgasms are difficult,” says Dr. Bryan.

Dark = Low Blood Flow Light = Increased Blood Flow

A boost in Nitric Oxide levels may equal increased sexual sensitivity for men and women. Tammy from Ontario said, “The first night after my first dose I had improved circulation in my hands. I find the increased circulation is a definite benefit in the bedroom.” “We noticed a difference in my husband’s erections within a week. We can’t believe how well it works,” reports pleased wife Marion S., of New York.

NATURAL RESULTS YOU CAN FEEL

Lee L., from CA was stunned with her results. “I have had knee, leg and shoulder problems for over 10 years. The pain has deprived me of sleep for months!

Ronald D. TX explains, “The results were noticeable overnight. I had more energy and was able to focus more readily.”

BEET & BERRY COMBO BOOSTS N-O

Neo 40 daily proprietary combination of N-O boosting nutrients: amino acids, B Vitamins, Vitamin C, and Magnesium are specially formulated with the patent pending combination of red beet and hawthorn berry. The natural chemistry between them generates Nitric Oxide when dissolved in the mouth. The result is increased oxygen delivery, improved vascular function, enhanced sexual enjoyment, and protection against free radicals.

BOOST BLOOD FLOW & OXYGEN STARTING IN 20 MINUTES!

“I recommend this lozenge because it helps the body restore N-O, which leads to healthy circulation; for most in as little as 20 minutes,” affirms Dr. Bryan. The result is increased oxygen delivery, heightened immune function, improved vascular function, and enhanced sexual enjoyment

A look inside: Secondary non-conforming suites

A couple's story.
Tight rental market leaves tenants with few options

HELEN PIKE
helen.pike@metronews.ca

With no second exit in their basement suite, Miranda Woofenden and Matt Baziuk opted to sleep with a fire extinguisher on the nightstand, fearing if the flat went up in flames, they would go with it.

The pair lived in a non-conforming suite, or what they call an illegal secondary suite.

"We think there's a problem," said Baziuk. "Nothing will come of it if people don't speak up."

It's been over seven months since the couple moved into their northwest abode, and they are finally settling in. The last boxes were unpacked a week ago and everything is in its place.

The only reminder of the horrible home troubles is posted on the front door, a laminated piece of paper that reads: "Building Permit."

Calgary's vacancy rate rings in at a mere 1.4 per cent. The city is struggling to come up with creative housing solutions, and when it comes to non-conforming secondary suites, the issue is hard to address.

"On the existing (suites), I think it's far more complex than it really has to be," said chief building official Marco Civitarese. "I really think the safety component needs to be highlighted ... so that these things can be allowed to exist."

He added that the city works with landlords to make repairs to existing suites "doable," because the last thing they want is to dismantle a suite, creating one less home in a housing market already struggling to keep up with growing population.

New secondary suites have to go through a permit process before they are built, but with existing suites, the city says it's up to landlords and tenants to make sure they are complying with basic housing standards.

Woofenden and Baziuk recounted stories of power outlets that didn't work, a stove that "almost killed" Woofenden, and a window with anthills and other uninvited guests marching through the apartment.

Armed with a little research, they called in an Alberta Health inspector, who looked through the apartment and produced a laundry list of infractions, some deadlines, and advice to get more inspections done. Each inspection came with different lists, critical deadlines and endless work.

"We weren't sure if we were going to have to move, we weren't sure if our landlord was actually doing the repairs," said Woofenden. "We were just in limbo and didn't really know what to do."

A representative from Alberta Health said in this particular case, the landlord worked collaboratively with them to address issues and co-operated throughout the process.

Inspectors and contractors waltzed in and out of the couple's basement apartment. Finally, 11 weeks past deadline, their new bedroom window — and critical second escape route in the event of a fire — was finally installed, and the two could breathe easier.

But they said they still have concerns about others who are going through the same thing.

Miranda Woofenden and Matt Baziuk said upgrades were eventually made to their suite, but they are concerned about others living in less than ideal conditions. HELEN PIKE/METRO

Calgary remembers the sacrifices of those who serve

Despite temperatures of -15 C, not counting the wind chill, Calgarians came by the thousands Tuesday to Remembrance Day ceremonies across the city. Many spoke of a particularly strong desire to honour the sacrifices of Canada's servicemen and women this year, after the recent murders of Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and Cpl. Nathan Cirillo on Canadian soil. Here, we present a handful of images from two of the larger ceremonies in the city.

Sacrifices honoured at Military Museums

'Our grateful nation.' Kenney speaks of the 'vastness of grief' felt by families after WWI

ROBSON FLETCHER
robson.fletcher@metronews.ca

Calgarians arrived en masse for a bitterly cold and particularly poignant Remembrance Day ceremony at the Military Museums that was underscored by the recent killings of two soldiers on Canadian soil.

"Today we gather here by the hundreds — and from sea to sea, by the millions — to rededicate ourselves to the struggle of freedom against tyranny and of memory against forgetting," Calgary Southeast MP and Employment Minister Jason Kenney told the crowd outside the Military Museums.

"We do so mindful that just days ago our grateful nation laid to rest two men who died in that struggle."

Premier Jim Prentice acknowledged all Canadians who sacrificed their lives for their country and the "unimaginable loss" felt by their families. He singled out one local family, in particular.

"Personally, each year at this time, I also remember a Calgarian: Capt. Nichola Goddard, who served in the 1st Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery," Prentice said. "Nichola was a remarkable young woman."

Goddard was killed in a 2006 firefight in Afghanistan.

Andrew and Michelle Thorburn both had grandfathers who fought in the Second World War. Undeterred by the windchill, they brought their son Kiefer, 5, to lay a poppy.

"We figured the least we could do is fight through this for everything they went through," Andrew said.

Young and old wander through Field of Crosses

It will be many years before youngster Aubrey Macleod understands the sacrifice made by her great-great-grandfather.

She's due to turn two on Friday, nearly a century after her relative was killed fighting in the First World War.

On Tuesday, Aubrey and her family donned their warmest attire and paid their respects at a roadside Remembrance Day ceremony on Memorial Drive, passing through the Field of Crosses display on their way.

"We're trying to explain to the kids about the importance of it all," said father Colin Macleod. "It's a long time ago."

They were far from alone, as hundreds braved the biting cold for the ceremony, including Calgary police Chief Rick Hanson and Calgary fire Chief Ken Uzeloc.

For his part, Uzeloc wasn't surprised to see hundreds gathered around a temporary stage for the ceremony, some trudging up the slick hill behind the Field of Crosses display for a better view.

Tradition

The annual Field of Crosses display includes 3,000 white crosses, each inscribed with the name, rank, regiment, date of death and age at death of a southern Alberta soldier killed in action.

There was no doubt this year's ceremonies held special importance, Uzeloc said, in light of the recent killings of two soldiers on home soil.

"Given the last few weeks ... people have really come to recognize the importance of our military," Uzeloc said. "I think this is a reminder of why we have the freedoms we have." JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

New Calgary Transit website gets thumbs-up

Real-time data. Knowing exactly where buses are is a huge boon, say riders

Riders gave Calgary Transit's newly launched website mostly positive reviews Tuesday, despite a few startup glitches when the long-awaited online interface launched Monday.

"I think the new site is really slick," said Doug Hass, who figures the addition of real-time info will save him from waiting in the cold for late buses.

"The only setback was the site issues yesterday during afternoon rush," he added, referencing the site's temporary crash. "That said, with anything new, there's bound to be some glitches."

Andrea Wettstein said the GPS-based technology will virtually eliminate waiting on her commute.

"The bus stop is less than a block from my office so it allows me to basically work until the last second and then just throw on my coat and run outside," she said. "It's awesome."

Nick Heer, the writer of Pixel Envy, a local tech-focused blog, said the new site is "much improved," over the old site, especially for mobile users.

"The real-time scheduling is a huge boon, especially for mobile," he said. "Real-time schedules are good; real-time schedules on your phone are way more relevant."

Calgary Transit is also working on a mobile app that officials previously said could launch as early as December.

Messages a 'sarcastic shot' at commercialization of Nov. 11

Scrawled messages on chalkboards attached to the front of a Calgary art gallery were bashed as disrespectful Tuesday, but their creator says they intend to take a "pretty clear sarcastic shot" at the commercialization of Remembrance Day.

The messages on the front of Uptown 7th read, "Let's gets Nov. 11 over with! Santa rules" and "So, men and women died and dropped so we can shop on Nov. 11."

The messages caught the attention of Alberta Justice Minister Jonathan Denis, who tweeted a photo of them and wrote: "It saddens me to see attitudes like this in our city — right by a legion. Lest we forget."

When a reporter pointed out that the remarks may be ironic, Denis replied, "I'm not laughing."

But JJ Sunstrum, who runs the startup art and cultural space, said he uses the chalkboards as a means to start conversations on important topics. He said he wrote the messages three days ago and intended to remove them in favour of something more supportive in time for Remembrance Day.

Messages like this one on the front of Uptown 7th generated buzz Tuesday. COURTESY JONATHAN DENIS

Still, Sunstrum said the messages were clearly tongue-in-cheek.

"I'm getting a little tired of some of our market society.... It's not a … holiday, it's Remembrance Day," he said.

"You can't (urinate) without someone on a television trying to be your friend and sell you the latest product."

Police appeal for public help after sexual assault

Calgary police are asking anyone who might have been near the Calgary Zoo, Langevin Bridge or the nearby path system to get in touch following a sexual assault in the area.

Around 9:30 p.m. Saturday, a man discovered an injured woman in the bushes near the 600 block of Memorial Drive.

She was suffering from what police described as life-threatening injuries and rushed to a nearby hospital.

She remained in critical but stable condition Tuesday, police said in a release.

Detectives are looking to speak with anyone who was in the area from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday. METRO

Gamers' replica guns cause fright

Some wannabe Master Chiefs gave a bit of a fright to Calgary mall shoppers Monday night.

Police received a call around 10:40 p.m. about multiple people walking around Chinook Centre carrying what appeared to be machine guns.

"Some of the video-game aficionados showed up wearing costumes and carrying replica weapons that are found inside the game (Halo)," Sgt. Cory Ma said. "(Callers) couldn't tell the difference between the official weapon and one that wasn't real."

Ma said the gamers were attending a midnight release for Halo: The Master Chief Collection.

Arbitration ahead for Calgary cops after city's 'strange' contract offer

Labour dispute. Though a strike is not allowed, union rep is considering 'educational' job action

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Calgary police and city representatives have been locked in contract negotiations for months and are now turning to a third-party arbitrator to hammer out a deal.

According to the Calgary Police Association, the city is offering a two per cent pay hike in 2014, 2.25 per cent in 2015 and 2.5 per cent in 2016.

But Howard Burns, CPA president, said that would put the officers nearly two per cent below the city's agreed deal with CUPE 38 workers.

"It's strange, it's odd," Burns said of the city's offering. "I've been a policeman for 26 years and I've never seen it before."

Legislation prohibits the police service from striking, but Burns said his team is mulling a work awareness campaign, although it will likely be a tad less dramatic than the last such campaign in 2002.

That year, union representatives encouraged members to hand out warnings in place of traffic tickets for certain offences, encouraged them not to shave and distributed baseball caps with the slogan "Back the Blue."

Burns said this campaign would be more "educational in nature." He noted that the most recent Calgary Police Commission citizen survey found 96 per cent approval for police.

The Calgary Police Service budget eats up 14 per cent of the city's total $3.2-billion operating budget — by comparison, the entire transportation budget accounts for 18 per cent — but Burns noted the growth has been commensurate with total operational spending increases over the past decade. He said the average household forks over about $29 per month for policing.

"To be able to pick up the phone if you have an emergency — or you have a problem and have somebody comes — costs the average household less than a cup of coffee per day," he said.

A City of Calgary representative confirmed that the parties would be headed to interest arbitration. It wasn't clear how long that process would take.

Calgary police union representatives say they're being lowballed by the city in ongoing contract negotiations. METRO FILE

Mount Royal student reps push for fall reading week

Mount Royal student leaders are pushing for a reading week in the fall. METRO FILE

Student leaders at Mount Royal University hope to gain approval for a fall reading week trial as early as next year and may also push for additional evening and Saturday class options.

It comes as part of a larger strategy to make post-secondary more convenient and accessible for students from all walks of life, according to Tristan Smyth, vice-president academic with the Students' Association of Mount Royal University (SAMRU).

Students already have a "fall reading break," but it is just two days and includes Remembrance Day. Smyth, however, said he hopes to bring a proposal before the institution's general faculties council for a full week off, with hopes of running a pilot as early as the 2015-16 school year.

"I think it's an opportunity for students to catch up on work, to work ahead — and there's a lot of things that students need to do that aren't related to their coursework," he said.

The break has also been touted as a mental-health boon for students. Smyth said an analysis has determined that Mount Royal already has more instructional days that many comparable schools and would likely need to start the fall semester only two days early or extend it a couple closer to Christmas.

He said senior executives appear supportive of the move, but there has been some concern from faculty members.

Students' Union members at the University of Calgary attempted to push for a similar fall reprieve last year, but the idea was shelved as it appeared it would come at the expense of the school's popular Block Week, which allows a student to complete an outstanding course in just five days.

SAMRU, meanwhile, will issue a survey on the fall reading week later this month and currently has one out questioning the timing of courses.

The surveys are being offered for Mount Royal students at samru.ca. JEREMY NOLAIS/METRO

Highway 12

Fatal crash claims three lives

RCMP are investigating after three people were killed in a central Alberta crash early Tuesday.

The incident happened on Highway 12 around 7:15 a.m. RCMP believe the driver of a westbound pick-up truck lost control and crossed the path of another truck heading east. Two occupants in the westbound truck were pronounced dead on scene, as was the driver of the eastbound truck. Two other passengers in the eastbound vehicle were taken to hospital with minor injuries.

RCMP said the roads were icy at the time of the collision and do not believe speed or alcohol were factors. METRO

Kitimat, B.C.

Alberta hunting guide dies in fall from cliff in B.C.

A 26-year-old hunting guide from Alberta has died after falling from a cliff in British Columbia, according to police.

RCMP from Kitimat, B.C., and officials with the B.C. Coroners Service are investigating the death, which happened in a remote location upstream from Kitimat along the Kemano River.

Mounties said they received a notification from an emergency satellite beacon at about 8:50 p.m. Monday and, at about 8:40 a.m. on Tuesday, located the guide's body.

Police have not released the name of the deceased, pending notification of next of kin. METRO

Follow 'The Milky Way,' breastfeeding group advises moms

Declining rates. Calgary Breastfeeding Matters Group hopes to make breastfeeding a more popular option among new moms

YASMIN JASWAL
calgary@metronews.ca

In Alberta, 29 per cent of babies who are six months old are exclusively breastfed, a statistic that the Calgary Breastfeeding Matters Group hopes to increase by raising awareness of both the benefits of breastfeeding and what is preventing more of it from happening.

According to Jen Peddlesden, a committee member with the group, there are many reasons why women stop breastfeeding their babies early.

"A lot of it has to do with mothers not having confidence," she said. "They may not know where to go and get support. And commercial interests are out there trying to encourage moms to use formula for their babies."

Breastfeeding is slowly declining in the province, according to a study by the Public Health Agency of Canada that found breastfeeding initiation rates dropped by two per cent over a five-year period.

The CBMG will be screening a documentary on Nov. 12 called The Milky Way, which highlights the stigmas and lack of support for women who want to breastfeed. After the screening, there will be a panel discussion about the film.

Peddlesden hopes expecting mothers, as well as their partners, will attend.

"The movie deals a lot with the family aspect of what breastfeeding is," she said. "It really gives good information about how breastfeeding can become normal feeding."

Magnotta said he thought Jun Lin was a government agent, psychiatrist testifies

Murder trial.
Magnotta has admitted to killing Jun Lin, but pleaded not guilty by way of mental disorder

Luka Rocco Magnotta
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Luka Rocco Magnotta believed Jun Lin was a Canadian government agent sent to kill him the night the Chinese student was slain and dismembered, a psychiatrist testified Tuesday.

Magnotta's version of events was given earlier this year to Marie-Frederique Allard, who assessed him for criminal responsibility.

Her report is central to the defence case in light of the various charges Magnotta faces related to Lin's slaying.

Magnotta, 32, has admitted to killing Lin in May 2012 but has pleaded not guilty by way of mental disorder.

While police were never able to determine how the two men met, Allard said Magnotta told her it occurred after he placed an advertisement on Craigslist seeking a bondage partner. Lin replied to the ad and they met in person briefly for the first time before walking several blocks to Magnotta's apartment.

Allard said Magnotta told them they drank wine and had sex. Magnotta was the first to be tied up, but complained Lin was going too fast and was hurting him.

The jury then heard from Allard that Magnotta became anxious and took some sleep medication, with Lin asking for some. Magnotta said he thought he saw a black car parked outside his building and became paranoid about a government conspiracy involving Lin, Allard testified.

Allard said Magnotta began hearing voices telling him to tie up Lin and to "cut it." Subsequently, Lin had his throat cut.

In earlier testimony, Allard said Magnotta told her that an email he sent a British tabloid foretelling the murder of a human being was meant only as a threat to a journalist who'd ambushed him. The Crown contends the communication to the London Sun suggests Magnotta was planning a slaying up to six months in advance of Lin's killing.

Allard, a forensic psychiatrist, has said she believes Magnotta was suffering from schizophrenia and was in a psychosis when he killed Lin.

Canadian sought sex with boys after near-death experience, U.S. agent says

A Quebec man charged in an American sting cited a near-death experience for wanting to live out his "perv" fantasy of having sex with a boy, an American special agent alleges in court documents.

In an unproven criminal complaint filed in court in Florida this week, Vanessa Blanco, a special agent with the U.S. Department of Homeland Security, alleges Rene Roberge confessed to flying to the U.S. to have sex with a 14-year-old boy.

Roberge, 47, was arrested Sunday at the Fort Lauderdale Hollywood airport. He was charged with coercion and enticement of a minor to engage in sexual activity and travelling with intent to engage in illicit sexual conduct.

50,000 gather in Ottawa to honour Canada's vets

Remembrance Day. Huge crowd salutes Cpl. Nathan Cirillo, Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent and all of nation's heroes

People place poppies at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier following the Remembrance Day ceremony at the National War Memorial in Ottawa on Tuesday. JUSTIN TANG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a Remembrance Day like no other for many Canadians.

Tens of thousands of people gathered at the National War Memorial in Ottawa on Tuesday, where on Oct. 22 Cpl. Nathan Cirillo was murdered by a gunman who then attacked Parliament — an assault that followed a fatal attack on Warrant Officer Patrice Vincent in Quebec two days before.

As Gov. Gen. David Johnston rededicated the National War Memorial, which now recognizes the mission in Afghanistan and the South African War, he paid tribute to Vincent and Cirillo, and to the many others who died and are represented by the Unknown Soldier.

"We will stand on guard for him and for them, as did Nathan Cirillo, who takes his place among them," Johnston told the crowd. "We will strive for peace and for freedom, as did Patrice Vincent, who joins them also."

The crowd was also there to honour living veterans like Ret. Sgt. Roly Armitage.

Sitting in the front row with his partner, Connie Bertrand, the Second World War veteran was thinking of Canada's two most recent losses and of his comrades from long ago.

"These two boys who have been killed in the last couple weeks, they were in uniform — they have to be prepared for that sort of thing," he said. "It's a sad, sad situation."

Armitage, 89, was a range finder with the Royal Canadian Artillery. He said he had to come to the ceremony because remembering his comrades provides him a sense of healing.

"It (makes me) feel better that I remember those guys. They're closer than your brothers. We were together all that time and we depended on each other," he said.

Remembrance Day usually attracts around 35,000 to downtown Ottawa, but police estimate this year's crowd to be about 50,000 people.

Ghomeshi scandal

Director returns to CBC to take the reins of Q

A former veteran CBC news director is returning to the network to take over the radio show Q following the firing of its scandal-plagued host, Jian Ghomeshi, the broadcaster said Tuesday.

Jamie Purdon, who currently works with a non-profit organization, will start Monday as interim executive producer, replacing Arif Noorani, who asked to be reassigned.

"A very capable guy," said Chuck Thompson, a CBC spokesman. "Highly respected."

Thompson had no further information and Purdon could not immediately be reached for comment.

According to his online profile, Purdon spent nearly 30 years with CBC, working his way up to director of newsgathering until he left in 2012. As director, he set the editorial agenda for both CBC TV and radio.

Purdon is known for helping create programs for radio such as As it Happens and The Current. He also has extensive experience as a television producer.

Conrad Black poses at the University Club in Toronto on Tuesday. Black may be known for his very public and dramatic renouncement of his Canadian citizenship, but he doesn't believe that should be counted against his new 1,020-page book, Rise to Greatness: The History of Canada from the Vikings to the Present, which showcases the same dedication to detailed research he displayed in earlier tomes on American history and political figures. Report questions subsidizing oil

Holding climate change at 2 degrees Celsius. Scientists say two-thirds of reserves must remain in ground

Why subsidize the search for oil and gas that we can never burn if we want to limit the damage from climate change?

That's the question asked in a new report from an environmental think-tank, which says Canada is one of the most generous countries in the G20 towards energy exploration.

"There's been virtual consensus among the scientific community that we have significantly more proven reserves than we can afford to burn and put into the atmosphere if we're going to meet the international goal for climate change," said Stephen Kretzmann, director of Oil Change International.

The Oil Change report, released Tuesday, uses data from the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development to calculate the sum total of economic assistance to energy exploration for the world's 20 largest industrial economies in the form of direct payments, exploration tax breaks, favourable financing deals and the activities of state-owned companies. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quoted

"The idea that we are spending, in the G20, $88 billion every year to find more reserves is kind of crazy."

Stephen Kretzmann, director of Oil Change International

Canadian oil. Lawsuits are next challenge in the U.S.

There are new threats of lawsuits against Canadian oil pipeline projects in the United States, suggesting that the election of an oil-friendly, Republican-dominated U.S. Congress won't end the industry's battles there.

The most famous of those projects is Keystone XL — but it's not the only one.

A coalition of groups will also hold a news conference Wednesday to discuss a lawsuit in U.S. federal court against expansion plans for another network into the American Midwest, Enbridge Inc.'s Alberta Clipper.

Such legal threats offer a cautionary note in a symphony of speculation since last week's U.S. midterms that the results might be a boon for bitumen.

An activist who led the fight against Keystone XL remains hopeful President Barack Obama would veto any pipeline bill that reached his desk. Should he sign it, she said, there will be another date in court.

Jane Kleeb said the grounds for such a suit would be constitutional, and revolve around whether Congress actually has the right to approve infrastructure that crosses international boundaries.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

President's powers

Cross-border infrastructure cases specifically involving Canadian oil:

- A South Dakota aboriginal tribe attempted to overturn a permit for the first Keystone pipeline and was rebuffed in a 2009 decision that declared cross-border infrastructure decisions belong to the president.
- In a 2010 case on the original Alberta Clipper, the court cited ample precedent for letting the administration make its own choices, including a history of presidential permits and "congressional silence" in such cases.

Canadian jets strike ISIL artillery targets in Iraq

Remembrance Day strike. Defence minister thanks 600 men, women in uniform for their work

The Department of National Defence says Canadian fighter jets have struck another blow against Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) targets in Iraq.

A spokeswoman for Defence Minister Rob Nicholson says CF-18 fighter-bombers used a laser-guided bomb to hit an artillery position today near the city of Bayji, north of Baghdad.

Johanna Quinney says the airstrikes were being conducted in support of Iraqi forces leading localized offensives in the area.

U.S. and coalition jets have been pounding the area in recent weeks, destroying bunkers, vehicles and at least one anti-aircraft gun in recent days.

Quoted

"This strike demonstrates Canada's firm resolve to tackle the threat of terrorism and stand with our allies against ISIL's atrocities against innocent women, children and men."

Defence Minister Rob Nicholson

A technical briefing on the strike has been scheduled for Thursday.

In a statement, Nicholson acknowledged the fact that the strike took place on Remembrance Day, as he thanked the military personnel taking part in Canada's combat mission against ISIL.

"I commend the nearly 600 men and women in uniform for their tremendous work today in the international fight to degrade ISIL," Nicholson said.

Canadian woman, former Israeli soldier, joins Kurdish militia fighting ISIL: Reports

Israeli media reports a Canadian-born woman who served in the Israeli military has joined a Kurdish militia fighting the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL).

Channel 10 TV reported Tuesday that Gill Rosenberg travelled to Iraq about 10 days ago.

The 31-year-old served in the Israeli military and had previously worked as a pilot in Canada, it said.

The station said she spent time in a U.S. prison for her part in a phone scam.

Speaking in Hebrew to Israel Radio, she said she contacted the fighters on Facebook.

"I was with the guerrillas in the mountains for a few days and then I crossed the border," she said.

Facebook photos show pictures of her in Israeli army uniform in Jerusalem and what media said were her selfies taken in Iraq.

Eggless mayo? Hellmann's claims it's false advertising

Unilever, the maker of Hellmann's, is suing a California company that uses the word Mayo in its sandwich spread name, saying regulators and dictionaries define mayonnaise as a spread that contains eggs. The suit claims false advertising by Hampton Creek for labelling its plant-based product Just Mayo.

Hampton Creek CEO Josh Tetrick said his company isn't trying to mislead consumers. He noted that Just Mayo's label states that it is an egg-free product. Just Mayo hit store shelves this year as the first product from the San Francisco-based startup that touts the backing of Microsoft founder Bill Gates and Li Ka-shing, Asia's wealthiest person. 10-year chase set to end with landing on comet

Studying a giant ball of ice and dust. Landing is climax of Rosetta spacecraft's journey to celestial body known as 67P

How do you land a spacecraft on a comet that is streaking by at 66,000 km/h?

That's a problem scientists have been grappling with for more than a decade as they prepare for one of the most audacious space adventures ever — the European Space Agency's attempt to land a scientific probe on the giant ball of ice and dust known as 67P/Churyumov-Gerasimenko.

They'll find out Wednesday whether their plan will work when the agency's mission control centre in Darmstadt, Germany, gives its unmanned Rosetta space probe the final go-ahead to drop a lander on the comet.

Scientists hope that the data collected by Rosetta and its sidekick lander, Philae, will provide insights into the origins of comets and other objects in the universe.

On Tuesday, the agency announced that systems aboard the Philae lander had failed to switch on properly at first. Fearing a cosmic calamity, scientists tried a reboot. "The lander successfully powered up, and preparations are now continuing as planned," the agency said on its website.

The hitch demonstrates how much can still go wrong with the $1.62-billion US mission first conceived more than two decades ago.

If anything goes wrong, scientists will be powerless to do anything but watch. Since it takes more than 28 minutes for a command to reach Rosetta, the lander has been programmed to perform the touchdown autonomously. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rosetta spacecraft

Launched in 2004, the Rosetta spacecraft had to swing around Earth three times — and once around Mars — to gain enough speed to chase down the comet. After travelling 6.4 billion kilometres, it pulled up alongside 67P in August.

- Rosetta and the comet are flying in tandem between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, 500 million kilometres from Earth.

South Korean ferry captain gets 36 years

Ferry captain Lee Joon-seok YONHAP, HYUNG MIN-WOO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More than 300 dead. Captain Lee Joon-seok acquitted of homicide charge, found guilty of negligence and abandoning passengers in crisis

Enraged parents wept and screamed as a judge sentenced a South Korean ferry captain to 36 years in prison Tuesday for negligence and abandoning passengers when his ship sank earlier this year, killing more than 300 people, mostly high school students.

The highly anticipated verdict came on the same day officials called off searches for the final nine victims.

Victims' relatives immediately criticized the sentences for captain Lee Joon-seok and 14 other crew members as too lenient. Lee was acquitted of a homicide charge, which could have carried a death sentence, because the court said there wasn't proof that he knew his actions would cause such a massive loss of life.

"Do you know how many children are dead?" one relative shouted out during the sentencing, according to Kook Joung-don, a lawyer for the relatives.

Most of the ferry passengers were teenagers taking a school trip to a southern island, and many student survivors have said they were repeatedly ordered over a loudspeaker to stay on the sinking ship and that they didn't remember any evacuation order being given before they helped each other flee the vessel.

Lee said he issued an evacuation order, but told reporters after his arrest he withheld the evacuation order because he feared for the passengers' safety in the cold, swift waters.

An official from the Justice Ministry, who requested anonymity because of office rules, said Lee, 69, technically will be eligible for parole after serving one-third of his prison sentence. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'That is not usual.' Deaths uncommon in sterilization program: Medical officer

Eight Indian women have died and 20 others were in critical condition Tuesday after undergoing sterilization surgeries in a free government-run program to help slow the country's population growth.

A total of 83 women, all poor villagers under the age of 32, had the operations Saturday in a hospital outside Bilaspur city in the central state of Chhattisgarh. All 83 surgeries were conducted within six hours, and each woman received a payment of 600 rupees, said the state's chief medical officer, Dr. S.K. Mandal.

"That is not usual," he said, but declined to comment further on what might have gone wrong until autopsies are conducted on the victims.

A federal Health Ministry spokeswoman declined comment on whether the government has set sterilization quotas, while activists blame the quotas for leading health authorities to pressure women into surgery rather than opt for contraception.

India's government has been long concerned about the rapid growth of its population, which has reached 1.3 billion people. The country has the highest rate of sterilizations among women at 37 per cent, sitting ahead of China at 29 per cent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Like thousands of other young men in the 1940s, Rupert Starr joined the army, fought overseas and saw his share of hardship, including several weeks as a German prisoner of war. He returned to Ohio with a Bronze Star for heroism, and a secret.

Not until his service as a military man was needed once again — this time as an activist against the Pentagon's Don't Ask Don't Tell policy banning gays from openly serving in the military — did Starr, who is gay, slowly step out of the closet.

Now 92 and still on the go, Starr — known universally by his family nickname Twink — is unabashed in his support for fellow gays in the service and love for his country.

"They were saying that you could not have the courage or the nerve to be in combat and you weren't qualified then to protect your buddy, because you would give up. You'd fade or you'd die, you'd cry," said Starr, who was honoured this weekend at a Stonewall Columbus veterans event.

"Well, that's not true," he said. "And I can prove it."

Starr enlisted in 1943 and graduated from infantry school, then was shipped overseas in October 1944 — first to England, then to St. Vith, Belgium. Starr was returning to headquarters from a mission during the Battle of the Bulge when he and a sergeant were captured by the Germans on Dec. 21, 1944.

Starr survived a series of harrowing travails as a POW, before finally arriving in a German town where his captors fled ahead of the Russians in mid-February 1945. He arrived home in Boston on April 20, 1945.

In 2004, Starr met filmmaker Patrick Sammon, a member of Log Cabin Republicans, the nation's largest Republican organization representing gays and lesbians. Sammon persuaded Starr to make a promotional video, Courage Under Fire, to be used in the effort to defeat Don't Ask Don't Tell. The 1993 policy was eventually overturned in 2011.

In 2009, Starr was named grand marshal of the Columbus gay pride parade. It was a far cry from decades ago when Starr watched a pride parade standing by bushes where he figured he could hide in case someone saw him. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Would regulation kill Internet innovation?

America. Obama aims to impose new rules on high-speed Internet service providers, but industry leaders warn that would stifle progress

Let's say President Barack Obama gets his way and high-speed Internet service providers are governed by the same U.S. regulations imposed on telephone companies 80 years ago.

Depending on whom you listen to, the rules could unleash future innovation and create jobs — or stifle innovation and kill jobs. The divisive and often confusing debate has intensified now that Obama has entered the fray.

Obama's stance is meant to protect "net neutrality," the concept that everyone with an Internet connection should have equal access to all legal content online. The idea served as one of the Internet's building blocks, but its fate has been in limbo since January, when a court ruling invalidated Federal Communications Commission guidelines designed to treat all online traffic equally.

The FCC has already been working on a new regulatory framework and is under no legal obligation to heed Obama's call. Nevertheless, Obama's opinion turns up the political heat on FCC chairman Tom Wheeler and the four other commissioners who will make the final decision. The FCC isn't under a deadline to make a decision.

Obama believes the adoption of these Depression-era rules are the best way to preserve a "free and open" Internet that gives everyone in the U.S. the same access to any website hosting legal content, including video, music, photos, social networks, email and maps.

Adopting these rules would empower the U.S. government to prevent powerful online service providers such as Comcast, Verizon and Time Warner Cable from controlling Internet traffic in a way that suits their own financial interests.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Against regulation

If the U.S. government becomes the Internet's traffic cop, service providers could lose incentive to continue investing in projects that improve their networks and expand into areas that have little or no high-speed access.

- This would lead to less innovation and threaten millions of jobs, according to cable and telecommunications companies spearheading the argument for little or no regulation.
- Adopting Obama's approach "would threaten millions of jobs and a diverse array of stakeholders," warned an industry trade group.

A road for pedal power and solar power

Bicyclists are forced to use the pavement passing a stretch of bicycle path where a solar panel roadway is being constructed in Krommenie, north of Amsterdam, Netherlands, on Tuesday. PETER DEJONG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A project dubbed "SolaRoad" gets underway in the Netherlands this week, testing roadways as a potential canvas to collect solar energy. Fittingly for the cycle-crazy Dutch, the first SolaRoad is a bike path not far from Amsterdam.

The path is built of massive, Lego-like modules of solar panels embedded in concrete, each with heavy-duty glass on top protecting them from wear. An additional rough translucent plastic coating ensures bikers don't slip.

Sten de Wit of engineering firm TNO said Tuesday each square metre of road generates 50-70 kilowatt hours of energy per year. That's about enough for the initial strip of 70 yards to supply power to one or two Dutch households.

Cost

$3.7M

The test in the town of Krommenie will cost $3.7 million US.

The test in the town of Krommenie is slated to run three years and will cost 3 million euros ($3.7 million US), funded equally by the province of North Holland and a consortium of Dutch companies eager to commercialize solar roads.

Although using roads for solar power may seem inconvenient and costly, De Wit says it enjoys significant advantages. Most obviously, the potential generating area is all but unlimited: In the Netherlands, there are 35,000 kilometres of designated bike path alone.

Unlike power plants, solar roads can be located near where people live, and they still wouldn't take up land needed for other purposes. That's crucial in the Netherlands, which is both one of the world's most densely populated countries, and one of its most intensely farmed.

De Wit says despite the high costs of designing, building, installing and measuring the performance of the first SolaRoad, successor projects may be profitable within a decade. As solar cells get ever-cheaper and more efficient, installation and maintenance are quickly becoming the most expensive part of solar power. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COUNTRY AS GRASSROOTS AS ASTROTURF

JUST SAYIN'

Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca

What exactly is "country" music?

The reason I ask is that I watched the Country Music Awards the other night and whatever it was they were celebrating, it's a long way from Hank Williams, Hank Snow and all them other down-home Hanks.

I'm not sure most of the performers could find the country even with a GPS. It must be that green stuff they fly over when they're going to L.A., the current home of country music.

Of course, we've come to expect that Mammon trumps the Muse when it comes to award shows, but even the Grammys have more creative edge than the CMAs. At this year's Grammys, Sia sang her No. 1 hit Chandelier facing the wall, and never once looked into the camera. Maybe it was a protest against the homogenization of country.

Exhibit A: Carrie Underwood, country's ruling diva. With your eyes closed, I defy you to tell her from Celine Dion. Even with your eyes open, Carrie's an homage to Celine: a festival of over-the-top chest pounding, fists in the air, hair-blowing-in-the-wind-machine.

I guess you could argue that Las Vegas is in the country. And the fountain in front of the Bellagio, that's the ol' swimming hole.

Then there's the Country Group of the Year, Little Big Town. Lovely harmonies, but danged if they don't look and act like Abba with a slight twang. Is that Swedish?

Or how about Keith Urban? Of course, Keith is from Australia, where country is called the outback. He should be at the OMAs, the Outback Music Awards, held annually at Ayers Rock.

For most male country singers, the big decision seems to be "Hat? No hat?" The new generation of country music singers, e.g. the Florida Georgia Line boys or Luke Bryan, forgo the cowboy hat altogether, leaving it to their older brothers like Jason Aldean or Tim McGraw.

The size of the hat seems important. Garth Brooks, the Eminem of country music, made a rare cameo appearance at the CMAs, and Garth made sure there was no doubt about who's got the biggest hat. His was at least 10 gallons, er, 37.8541178 litres.

My wife's theory is that it depends on how much hair they have. Garth Brooks is follicularly challenged. Keith Urban has reliable hair even if he is from Oz.

If there's any doubt that what goes as country music today is as grassroots as AstroTurf, every once in a while, a real country music star wanders out onto the stage. This year's Ghosts of Actual Country Music were George Strait and Loretta Lynn. You can just tell they didn't learn their accents at the mall. You can't fake authenticity. You're either a coal miner's daughter, or you're not. Unfortunately, the two of them are about 160 years old. Both knockin' at heaven's door.

Final proof that pop culture has swallowed country and spit out the hayseeds: the inexplicable appearance of divalet Ariana Grande, that country sensation from Boca Raton, Fla., who began her career singing on cruise ships. Bon voyage, y'all.

Europe marked Armistice Day Tuesday with ceremonies and moments of silence as France opened an international memorial on a former battlefield.

This year's events had special significance because 2014 is the centenary of the start of the First World War. Tuesday marked the 96th anniversary of the armistice that ended the war on Nov. 11, 1918.

French President François Hollande inaugurated an international war memorial at Notre-Dame-de-Lorette, in northern France, in the presence of German, British and Belgian officials. The Ring of Memory carries the names of 600,000 soldiers from more than 40 countries who died in the region during the war. Names are listed alphabetically, without their nationalities.

"Yesterday's enemies, these men are now reunited in death as if they belong to the same family," said Hollande.

In Britain, thousands gathered at the Tower of London, where a blood-red sea of ceramic poppies spilled into the moat as part of an art installation paying tribute to soldiers killed in the fighting.

A 13-year-old army cadet, Harry Hayes, planted the final poppy — the last of the 888,246 glass flowers. Among the dead was Hayes' great-great-great-uncle, Pte. Patrick Kelly of the 1st Battalion, Irish Guards.

We trust you all had a peaceful and reflective Remembrance Day yesterday, which seemed a little more poignant than most. Aside from recent attacks on soldiers in our own country, this year marked the centenary of the beginning of World War I. To mark that anniversary, Britain planted a field of ceramic poppies around the Tower of London. See the completed field from above in a drone-shot video here. (Historic Royal Palaces/YouTube)

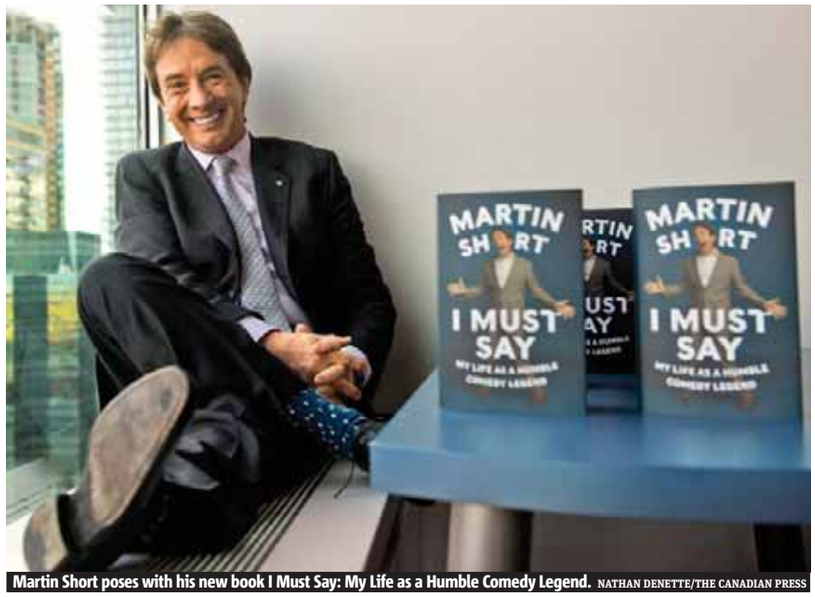
Short is humble, I must say

Books. SCTV and SNL funnyman Martin Short is philosophical about life's ups and downs



Martin Short poses with his new book I Must Say: My Life as a Humble Comedy Legend. NATHAN DENETTE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Martin Short says the reason he found the strength to keep going after his wife's death is simple: "We go on."

"Whatever we think it's going to be, the sun will come up, and you have to eat lunch," he said in a recent interview. "It's just life. We are all going to perish. I think we all naturally, understandably, live in denial of that."

Short, 64, reflects on both comedy and tragedy in his new memoir, I Must Say: My Life as a Humble Comedy Legend. The book details his journey to the top, from his early years as a member of Toronto's Second City improv troupe to the set of Saturday Night Live and to the big screen in films including Father of the Bride.

He writes that the death of his beloved wife of 30 years, Nancy Dolman, in 2010 is "by far the most awful thing I've been through." But he says he found strength for the sake of his three adult children. The night before Nancy died, Short told his youngest son Henry, "This will make you stronger. This will make you more determined."

"If I had no children, maybe I could have said, 'You know what? That's it for a public life,'" Short said. "But I have three kids, so they look to you to see what's the next step. 'Do we still have a family? Are we still a united front?' It's up to papa to make sure."

Short recalled throwing himself into work in the time after his wife's death. In a notorious episode of the Today show in March 2012, host Kathie Lee Gifford asked Short about his "great" marriage, apparently unaware Nancy had died.

He addresses the incident in his book, saying he has never felt any malice toward Gifford for the gaffe. "Besides, Kathie Lee wasn't wrong," he writes. "Nan and I did have one of the greatest marriages in show business."

While growing up in Hamilton, Ont., Short's four older siblings and both parents were constantly cracking jokes. "It was trickle-down funny," he said.

But his youth was marked by loss as well. When Short was 12, his eldest brother David died in a car accident. Then when he was 17, his mother died of cancer, and two years later, his father died of complications from a stroke.

Short said writing about painful memories wasn't necessarily "cathartic."

"I remember everything. I've lived with everything. So there were no surprises," he said. "What you don't know when you start is how open you're going to be: what you're going to tell, what you're not going to tell, what you feel comfortable telling.

"As you write it, you start to realize that it can't be a bunch of anecdotes about funny things that happened when I met Richard Burton. It has to have a little depth and understanding. That's why you write the book, because you gained wisdom in life and maybe you can give some of that wisdom to other people."

He recalled that in his early days, he quickly learned he had to know how to do everything — act, sing, dance, be funny — to succeed. Short eventually landed at Second City before joining the cast of SCTV in 1982.

The atmosphere at SCTV was harmonious because his castmates Joe Flaherty, Eugene Levy and Andrea Martin, among others, were so talented, he said.

"Usually the people who aren't the talented ones are the ones who become the most temperamental," said Short. "SCTV was that good. They didn't need to throw tantrums."

These days Short is still a sought-after film and stage actor. He has a role in Paul Thomas Anderson's upcoming film Inherent Vice, and will replace Nathan Lane in It's Only a Play on Broadway in January.

But for all his success, Short acknowledged he has never had a long-running sitcom or a box-office smash (apart from the Father of the Bride movies). He said that's never bothered him much, however.

"Well, you weren't thrilled when your film Innerspace didn't go through the roof, but I've never been drawn toward negative energy. So you take it in, you go, 'Hmm,' but then you go for a swim or something," he said. "It didn't make sense to wring your hands too long. I mean, prick me and I bleed, but then I put a bandage on."

Ed Grimley as marriage counsellor

In 1984 Short joined Saturday Night Live, where his excitable man-child character Ed Grimley became a standout.

- He reveals in the book that spiky-haired Ed was not only beloved to fans, but also had a special place in his marriage.
- "If we were having a fight and I wasn't backing down, she'd say, 'I don't want to talk to you anymore, I want to talk to Ed,'" he recalled.
- Then adopting Ed's gushing voice: "'Oh Miss Nancy, can you believe how stubborn he is? He's so self-absorbed and desperate and doesn't appreciate how beautiful you are, I must say.'"

Minaj says sorry for controversial imagery in video

Nicki Minaj is apologizing for a video that some feel uses Nazi imagery.

The rapper posted on Twitter on Tuesday that she didn't create the concept for the lyric video for her song Only. She wrote: "(I) take full responsibility if it has offended anyone. I'd never condone Nazism in my art."

The animated video, which debuted Friday, features a swarm of soldiers with red armbands featuring a logo that has been compared to a swastika. The logo also appears on Minaj's chest in the clip.

The video has more than two million views.

Hollywood aims to reclaim its crown as world's film capital

Los Angeles famously calls itself the Entertainment Capital of the World. But the reality is, many filmmakers have long since fled to cheaper locations in London, New York, Canada and elsewhere.

Now Hollywood is battling to win back its title.

In a bid to regain the initiative California tripled its tax credits this year for filmmakers, to $330 million US per year compared to $100 million per year previously.

The strategy has immediately borne fruit: in the third quarter of 2014 TV production in the City of Angels surged by 31 per cent year-on-year.

"While we are still trying to reclaim our share of television production, we're encouraged," said the head of Film LA, Paul Audley, announcing the new figures. AFP

Books. Bryan Cranston to voice audio sequel of naughty nursery rhyme

Bryan Cranston has lent his voice to a sequel to the profane hit nursery rhyme Go the (Bleep) to Sleep.

The Breaking Bad and Malcolm in the Middle star follows in the footsteps of Samuel L. Jackson by narrating You Have to (Bleeping) Eat, by novelist Adam Mansbach. The new audiobook will be available free from Audible starting Wednesday.

"This is a very funny book and my hope is that listeners will agree that I can swear with just as much panache as Samuel Jackson," Cranston said in a statement.

Sample line: "The bunnies are munching on carrots. The lambs nibble grasses and bleat. I know you're too hungry to reason with but you have to (bleeping) eat." Now imagine it's read by Walter White.

Go the (Bleep) to Sleep, with illustrations by Ricardo Cortes, was a surprise hit in 2011, inspired by Mansbach's daughter's resistance to sleeping. It sold more than 1.5 million copies worldwide.

Gaming. Assassin's Creed does French Revolution

A still from Assassin's Creed: Unity. UBISOFT

A new installment of blockbuster video game Assassin's Creed made its worldwide debut Tuesday, allowing players to wield deadly skills on the streets of Paris during the French Revolution.

Assassin's Creed: Unity is the latest installment of the annual, history-based action franchise from French gaming developer Ubisoft.

"I was surprised how realistic it could be," Ubisoft chief and co-founder Yves Guillemot told AFP at a major E3 video game trade show earlier this year.

"From the street names to how it was before compared to how it is now, you are really more into the details when it is your own city," he said.

Billed as the most "dense and immersive" version of the hit franchise ever created, Assassin's Creed: Unity casts players in the role of a young man who grows into a master assassin and helps shape the fate of France.

"We have been working with lots of people to try to get the spirit of the French Revolution — what happened and why it happened," Guillemot said. AFP

Carrie Brownstein and Fred Armisen of Portlandia have co-authored a cookbook. IFC

TV. Portlandia cookbook celebrates food scene — minus tater-tot nachos

You might be suspicious of a cookbook spawned from the sketch comedy series Portlandia, which lampoons the more eccentric elements of life in Portland, Ore., but series stars Carrie Brownstein and Fred Armisen assure us the Portland food scene is nothing to joke about.

"It really has its own signature on cuisine, I can't believe it. It also doesn't toot its own horn about (its) own food," Armisen says.

And, according to Brownstein, that culture extends to the book itself. "We're not trying to take it too seriously, but if you want to use it as a legitimate cookbook, it completely functions as that," she says.

"There are genuine recipes in there that are legitimately tasty. I think for new cooks or cooks who are just starting out, it's a good way because a lot of it is comfort food."

The only thing seemingly missing from the Portlandia Cookbook? Totchos — nachos made with tater-tots — a staple at bars around the city.

"Oh yeah, totchos! I have had totchos at the Florida Room. It's the best late-night bar food," Brownstein says. Maybe for the next book.

For a sample of what the book does have to offer, Brownstein and Armisen suggest the Bird in a Grilled Cheese Nest. "I love eggs on anything, and Portland is very egg-y now," Armisen says.

Brownstein likes the dish for its simplicity. "This is something that just requires bread and cheese and egg. It's all the ingredients I like, and it's kind of like a fancy grilled cheese," she says. "I'm sorry, yes, it's carb-heavy. You can follow that up with a big steak!"

'I just want to sing,' Idol's Angie Miller says

Music. Despite offers from record labels, singer is striking out on her own with the release of her first EP

Angie Miller hopes to capitalize on her American Idol success. GETTY IMAGES

If you pre-ordered Angie Miller's new EP, you're getting a personal touch that you might not even know about.

Miller, who rose to fame during the 2013 season of American Idol, is addressing the envelopes herself to send out copies of Weathered, which was released Tuesday.

"My apartment is hilarious right now," she says. "It's me, my boyfriend and my best friend who are here, and there's a stack of T-shirts and a stack of CDs and envelopes everywhere."

Although Miller was not the first Idol hopeful to sing an original song on the show (we can't forget Larry Platt's Pants on the Ground), her song, You Set Me Free, was a breakout hit.

After her elimination on Idol in the top three, Miller talked with several record labels, but opted not to pursue a deal because it would mean sacrificing her independence.

"I realized that getting a label deal and doing all of that stuff would take away from what I truly want to do, and I would have to compromise, and I know I wouldn't be in control of my career," she says. "I want to know everything that's going on, at least to start out. I want to make mistakes and learn how to do things right."

You Set Me Free was uploaded to iTunes after her TV debut of the song. When asked how this might have helped her financially, she says, "Honestly, I don't even know. I have no idea."

"I'm very thankful for my time on Idol, though, and they got me all of my fans — all of my Dreamers, as I call them," she says. "I wouldn't be the artist that I am today without American Idol."

As for the artist she is today, Weathered showcases Miller's songwriting and vocal chops.

"With this EP, I just think the most important thing is that when people listen to the six different songs, I want them to hear six different points in my life over the past two years," she says.

Weathered is also more artistically daring than the usual post-Idol fare. The title track is a building instrumental storm, almost reminiscent of The Cure, before Miller shouts an incantation through the fog. And it's over in about two minutes.

"I'm not a super commercial, bubblegum pop kind of girl. I wasn't even that on Idol," she says. "I did lots of singing in lots of places, growing up before Idol. And I heard lots of No's and I didn't always win, and I think that was good.

"I think it prepared me, because you're not going to win at everything. I didn't even win at Idol! Who knows if I'll ever completely win at something, but it doesn't matter. I can still sing! I'm not a huge fan of competition, anyway. I just want to sing."

Mass effect

Miller grew up in Beverly, Mass., before moving to Los Angeles at the beginning of this year. One of the tracks on Weathered is an anthem called This is the Life, with the refrain of "That's the way we do it, raised in Massachusetts."

"That is a tough word to fit in a song," she says. "Oh my goodness, that song came out of nowhere. I wrote it with three guys that go by the name of Red Decibel. We were just sitting in a pizza shop and we were like, 'We want to write a fun song!'"

Looking for gossip in a song is just 'sad'

Music. Leighton Meester wishes people would take their own experiences out of her songs on Heartstrings

Tabloid blogs are trying to use Leighton Meester's lyrics as a gossipy peek into her private life. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Leighton Meester's rootsy redesign Heartstrings offers a much clearer look at the actress-musician-model than her prior forays into glossy pop — and naturally, tabloid blogs are trying to use her lyrics for a gossipy peek into her private life.

In particular, the album's Fleetwood Mac-reminiscent title track inspired a round of articles speculating on which ex might have been Meester's inspiration, replete with thoughtful breakdowns.

The 28-year-old Meester, who has protected her privacy more carefully than many young stars, said she didn't intentionally obfuscate details in her songwriting to avoid this scenario. But she finds such lyrical sleuthing a bit uncomfortable, not to mention inaccurate.

"That's sort of what takes a bit of joy out of this process — it's all beautifully positive, but you know for people to focus on that would really be sort of sad, because I think they're missing out on their own experience," the former Gossip Girl star said in a telephone interview this week.

"That's what those people are built to do, and they're going to do it, I suppose. But (the lyrics are) truly not specific enough. It's just me and my feelings and my experiences and my heart. And truly, no one song is about any particular experience. It's really just sort of the culmination and the piling up of experiences."

And yet, Meester says the musing-on-muses phenomenon — of course also a Taylor Swift-related tradition — extends beyond the blogs.

"One thing that's strange is to say (live): 'I wrote this song about a breakup.' And then I can hear people in the crowd going, 'Who is it?' 'Who's she talking about?' First of all, that's not the point," Meester said. "And also ... I'm sure people deal with this all the time but it reduces it in a way that I don't like.

"It's so strange and sad to try to link these (songs) to a Hollywood hunk. It's sort of sidelining I suppose my actual message or accomplishment."

Working closely with producer Jeff Trott (an industry vet who has produced Stevie Nicks and Sheryl Crow and toured with Tears for Fears), Meester eventually formed a succinct nine-song collection of California folk and '70s AM pop — completely forsaking the dancefloor shine she flirted with a few years ago, most notably with the Top 10 Cobra Starship collaboration Good Girls Go Bad.

Here, Meester contributes acoustic guitar, mandolin and ukulele and she served as sole songwriter on the entire collection. Her passion for folk-pop largely grew from a fondness for Joni Mitchell that dates back to her earliest moments of consciousness.

"Growing up, I'd heard her just floating in and around my house. My dad would play her music," said Meester, who married The O.C. star Adam Brody in February.

"I wasn't conscious of her at all, it was very subconscious. Those melodies and her voice and her style just sort of seeped in and that was how I thought of music, and how I became attracted to songwriting."

Long time coming

Meester took more than two years to work on the songs on Heartstrings, while continuing a film career and spending four months performing Of Mice and Men opposite James Franco and Chris O'Dowd on Broadway.

JLaw once scorned, now Twitter shy

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Great job, haters. You've gone and scared off Jennifer Lawrence.

The Hunger Games star insists she's got a firm anti-social media stance, and it's all because you couldn't play nice.

"The Internet has scorned me so much that I feel like it's that girl in high school that I'm like, 'Oh, you want to talk about her? Yeah I'll do that!' Take my hoops off, I'm ready to go," she says in a BBC radio interview.

But it's not just scorn that's keeping her away. Lawrence thinks she just can't handle Twitter. "I don't really understand what it is. It's like this weird enigma that people talk about. It's fine, I respect that, but no, I'll never get a Twitter," she says.

Aw, she says "a Twitter" just like my 72-year-old aunt. That's adorable.

"If you ever see a Facebook, Instagram or Twitter that says it's me, it most certainly is not." Maybe someone should tell her about her official Facebook page, then.

Lindsay ready to say so long London town, hello New York City

Just giving you fair warning, New York: Lindsay Lohan is feeling "homesick" and is headed back our way.

Lohan will reportedly move back to New York City once her run in the West End production of Speed-the-Plow wraps up, according to Radar Online.

"She never intended on staying in London forever. She does love it there and has made some great friends in London, but N.Y.C. will always be her home."

She's also apparently "shopping around" for a new place downtown.

On the bright side, I think this means New York is about to get edgy again, right?

Bill Cosby not happy to be a man of memes

Bill Cosby ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

In "totally not getting the Internet" news, Bill Cosby got more than he bargained for this week when he asked fans online to "meme" him, offering a meme generator on his site where fans could put fun block text over photos of him from The Cosby Show à la Lolcats. Well, a lot of people used it, only they used it to reference allegations of rape made against the comedian a decade ago. His team deleted his initial tweet and took down the meme generator, but not before screen grabs went up.

How-to Avoid common travel mistakes

Tessa Singh from Sojourn Travel shares these travel tips.
1. Book airfares as early as possible to get the best price. No dawdling.
2. Your passport should be valid for at least six months prior to your return date.
3. Make sure the name on your passport matches the name on all of your travel documents.
4. Make two copies of your passport: one for your luggage and one to leave at home with a friend.
5. Check to see if the country you're visiting requires a visa.
6. Always travel with a bit of currency of the country you're visiting.
7. Research your trip at home, rather than in the hotel. DOUG WALLACE

AFTER YOUR HALIFAX ART ESCAPE, YOU MIGHT BE HUNGRY. SEE INSIDE FOR MORE ABOUT NOVA SCOTIA'S CHOWDER TRAIL

Catch Mary Pratt's work in Halifax this winter

Visitors to Halifax have until the end of February to enjoy a rare retrospective on the artwork of Mary Pratt, one of Canada's finest still-life painters. The Art Gallery of Nova Scotia, Atlantic Canada's largest art museum, is the final venue for the exhibition, which drew record crowds at galleries in Newfoundland, Ontario and Saskatchewan. Pratt's paintings typically deal with images of domestic life, but the stunning, almost stark, realism she brings to simple, everyday objects create what one critic has described as a "sense of wonder and occasional unease." Describing herself as a "realist painter," Pratt has said: "My only strength is finding something where most people would find nothing." The exhibition also features video vignettes, audio recordings and written descriptions of each painting from Pratt.

Nova Scotia, one bowl of chowder at a time

Chowder Trail. Have a hankering for something hearty? Check out one of the 60 featured chowders on this culinary trek

There are plenty of ways to make seafood chowder. In Nova Scotia, there's also no shortage of places to try it out.

At the Salt Shaker Deli in Lunenburg, it's done with scallops, mussels, shrimp and smoked haddock.

Le Caveau, a restaurant at the Domaine de Grand Pré winery in Grand Pré, serves its lobster and scallop chowder in a Spanish almond broth with spring onions and smoked paprika on top.

Sixty chowders across the province are featured in the 2014 edition of Nova Scotia's Chowder Trail, almost double last year's number, said Christine White, a spokesperson for Taste of Nova Scotia, the organization behind the idea, now in its third year.

"What makes the Chowder Trail unique is that every chowder is different," she said, adding it's a great way "to taste your way around the province."

And when it comes to seafood chowder, there are strong personal preferences.

Quoted

"What makes the Chowder Trail unique is that every chowder is different. (It's a great way) to taste you way around the province."

Christine White, spokesperson for Taste of Nova Scotia

"If you ask people what their favourite chowder is, you'll get all different answers," White said.

"For some people, it has to be creamy and thick. Other people don't like potatoes in it. For others it's not a chowder if it doesn't have potatoes, lobster and mussels in it."

At a chowder cook-off this year, featuring some of the restaurants on the trail, chef Thomas Carey of Pictou Lodge Beach Resort was named champion for a concoction that included double-smoked bacon, Nova Scotia mussels, fresh Atlantic scallops, haddock and fresh chopped tarragon.

Mark Gabrieau of Gabrieau's Bistro in Antigonish came in second, and Craig Flinn of Chives Canadian Bistro in Halifax was third.

A cookbook highlighting recipes for some of the trail chowders was published by Formac Publishing earlier this year and is available now.

London's calling

Don't leave the city without indulging in these English experiences

TEXT: LOREN CHRISTIE PHOTOS: PETER REMUS

Theatre

London has the most vibrant theatre scene in the world. Newly developed Leicester Square is the place to go and buy last-minute discount tickets. See all the big-name shows like Mama Mia or Wicked, or take in some new shows like Shakespeare In Love or The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time.

Pubs

You can't get much more English than having a pint at the pub. For an authentic experience, spill out on to the street with the after-work crowd or pop by a local on a Sunday and enjoy a roast lunch complete with Yorkshire pudding and sauce.

Markets

The buzz of city life and the characters you come across make a visit to one of the city's many markets a must. Check out the Borough and Spitalfields for food, Portobello for antiques and Camden for everything else.

Come for the game, stay for snacks

Game day bites. Creamy Hot Crab Dip and Nacho Appetizer Meatballs will have everyone cheering

DINNER EXPRESS
Emily Richards
food@metronews.ca

November is the time to enjoy some sports. Whether you are playing, coaching, watching or cheering in the background, there are a lot of awesome sports on.

With the variety of great games, you may want to invite friends over to watch and enjoy some tasty hot snacks like these. You'll see just how filling these snacks can be paired with some veggie sticks, nachos and salsa.

Eating in and enjoying small bites like these for dinner is a fun way to get together with friends and change up the everyday.

Ingredients

Creamy Hot Crab Dip
- 1 pkg (8 oz/250 g) cream cheese
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) each sour cream and mayonnaise
- 1 box (7 oz) frozen snow crab meat, thawed and squeezed dry
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) finely grated lemon rind
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) lemon juice
- 1 tsp (5 ml) Worcestershire sauce
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) hot pepper sauce
- 1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped fresh chives or parsley

Nacho Appetizer Meatballs
- 1 small onion, peeled, grated
- 1 egg
- 1/3 cup (75 ml) medium salsa
- 1 tsp (5 ml) Worcestershire sauce
- Pinch ground black pepper
- 2 cups (500 ml) bite size tortilla chips, crushed to make 1 cup (250 ml)
- 1 lb (500 g) extra lean ground beef
- Pretzel sticks
- Salsa, sour cream or nacho cheese sauce (optional)

FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in about 30 minutes or less

Creamy Hot Crab Dip

With a fresh burst of lemon rind and juice, this dip is perfect served up in a fondue pot or a small slow cooker. Lots of crackers, pretzel sticks or baguette slices are ideal dippers.

1. In a saucepan, combine the cream cheese, sour cream, mayonnaise, crab meat and garlic. Heat over low heat, stirring until the mixture is creamy and combined well.

2. Stir in lemon rind, juice, Worcestershire and hot pepper sauces.

3. Scrape into fondue pot or slow cooker to keep warm. Sprinkle with chives.

Nacho Appetizer Meatballs

These bite-size meatballs taste like nachos! Using tortilla chips and salsa adds great flavour and you can keep them warm in a slow cooker on low or simply heat them up when you need them. Serve with more salsa, sour cream or nacho cheese sauce to dip.

1. In a large bowl, stir together onion, egg, salsa, Worcestershire sauce and pepper. Stir in crushed tortilla chips and let stand for 10 minutes to soften. Mix in beef until well combined.

2. Using level tablespoon (15 ml) roll mixture into balls and place onto foil lined baking sheet. Place baking sheet 6 inches (15 cm) under broiler on High and broil for about 10 minutes, turning pan if necessary to cook evenly until golden and no longer pink inside.

3. Pierce pretzel stick in each meatball to serve. Serve with salsa, sour cream or nacho cheese sauce if desired.

The crab dip recipes makes 2 1/3 cups (575 ml). The meatball recipe makes about 38 meatballs. EMILY RICHARDS

Author Liz Wiseman says a "rookie move" shouldn't be thought of as a mistake or disaster, but rather "something that is innovative." ISTOCK

The new kid in town could turn this place around

Career. A former tech executive argues that new employees are the key to innovation

LAKSHMI GANDHI
Metro in New York City

The first few months of a job are often filled with stress as you navigate through a sea of new faces, rules and challenges. But a new book argues that being the new kid on the block in a startup company or burgeoning field can also lead to increased creativity and some of the best moments of your career.

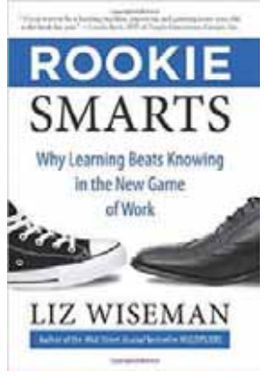
"When we're in this rookie mode is when we tend to do our very best work," says Liz Wiseman, the author of the book Rookie Smarts: Why Learning Beats Knowing in the New Game of Work. "There's brilliance in it. A rookie move isn't a mistake or a disaster but is actually something that is innovative."

Wiseman says that companies and managers should adjust the way they look at career changers and new employees. "Rookies come in without the mentality that it will take years of paying their dues before they can contribute and they tend to work a lot faster," she notes.

Here are some things real-life rookies should keep in mind as they navigate the workplace.

Age is just a number

"It's never too late to be a rookie," stresses Wiseman. "Professionals who are able to use their hard-won experience but are still able to tap into their rookie smarts will build a culture of innovation."



There is no honeymoon period

"Rather than be nervous, (realize) that this is where you are going to do your best work," says Wiseman. "Instead of seeing those first six months as a write-off and kind of being in learning mode and not being expected to contribute, actually the first six months is when people are valuable."

Ask smart questions

"Start reaching out to people who know (the lay of the land)," says Wiseman. "And that humble request for help is likely to kick in somebody's mentoring genes."

Oftentimes, says Wiseman, it's during the rookie period that people find a strong network of colleagues who will vouch for them down the line.

Don't be arrogant

No one has made friends by bluntly criticizing the way things are done. "I think approaching anything by saying 'I have a better way' is not going to go over well," Wiseman notes.

"I think the best approach, the humbler approach, is to think 'What can I learn from you? What can you teach me?' and then just deliver fast and I think just show them." A willingness to learn from your colleagues goes a long way.

Build a record of success

"You have to show you have a track record of success in rookie assignments," says Wiseman. "If you could show a trend of that, hiring managers will see that what you have is learning agility."

Developing an ability to think quickly on your feet is key to success. As Wiseman notes, "learning agility is forever; skills are ephemeral."

Gain speed in the modern rat race

Career. Use these six strategies to show the world that you're serious about success

RIANA TOPAN
TalentEgg.ca

Staying competitive in today's tough job market takes hard work. In addition to making you more desirable as an employee, the following six steps should also give you the satisfaction of knowing that you're doing everything you can to set yourself up for success in your career.

Professional development
This term might have sounded vague and slightly ominous when you were in school, but there's a reason it gets tossed around so much. It's incredibly important to continuously learn about your profession and what makes someone good at it.

There are always new technologies, strategies and work methods emerging in any given field.

Professional development (e.g. workshops, courses, training programs or online webinars) will help you to stay on top of best practices and give you a chance to learn from the pros.

Find a mentor

Finding a mentor doesn't have to require a huge commitment or be a formal and demanding relationship.

- It's mainly about having someone you can talk to — whether it's a boss, colleague or friend — who has more experience than you and who is willing to share their tricks of the trade. Everyone needs a bit of guidance sometimes and thankfully there are many people out there who are willing to pass on what they've learned to those who are just starting out.

Looking to accelerate your career? Think about what you can do to become a more desirable employee. ISTOCK

Networking
Building up a professional network is great, whether you're thinking about future job prospects, wanting to learn from those who have gone before you or if you just enjoy meeting new people.

If there aren't any networking events in your area that you can attend, try reaching out to people who have worked at your company for a while to see if you can buy them lunch or a coffee and ask them about their careers.

Or you can contact people who around your age or those who are working in similar positions at other companies to see if they're interested in getting together to chat about any work-related challenges you're all facing.

Together, you could brainstorm some great potential solutions.

Volunteering
Volunteering is beneficial at any stage of your life or career. Signing up to volunteer at an organization you're interested in is an excellent way to give back to your community, learn new skills and meet some amazing people.

You may discover an interest you didn't know you had or learn that you don't actually like a particular line of work as much as you thought you might. And of course, volunteer positions look great on a CV.

Take initiative
The more you are open to trying new things and taking on roles or responsibilities that are outside of your usual duties, the more opportunities you are giving yourself to learn, grow and shine. If your boss wants someone to take over a new project or portfolio, don't wait until it's assigned to you. Instead, offer to take the lead on it (as long as it won't make your workload unmanageable).

This will show your employer that you're a go-getter. Moreover, it could end up being a really positive experience.

Research
Unless your job actually involves research, this is probably something you thought you could avoid upon leaving school.

This isn't like the painstaking research you did before writing an essay — it's about staying up-to-date with what's going on in your industry.

In today's market, there is fierce competition for every job and industries change much more rapidly than they did in the past. Try subscribing to a blog that relates to your field, reading relevant journals or magazines or signing up to get email alerts every time something newsworthy happens in your industry. Whatever you need to do, make an effort to be aware of current trends and new developments that could impact your work.

Warming up to the big chill

CFL. Stampeders brave cold conditions in practice to prepare for West Division final

In their last game at McMahon Stadium, Anthony Parker, pictured, and the Stampeders didn't fare so well in the snow, losing 18-13 to the Blue Bombers.
DEREK LEUNG/GETTY IMAGES

Their bonus week of preparation for the CFL's West Division final turned frigid, the Calgary Stampeders are treating the conditions as a weather dress rehearsal for the division championship.

The heat cannons roared on the sidelines at Tuesday's practice while wind pushed temperatures into the minus-teens.

With a week and a half still to go until the division final Nov. 23 and the cold temperatures expected to continue until Saturday, this part of their preparation could feel tedious for the Stampeders.

"It's just something you've got to prepare for," receiver Marquay McDaniel said. "We don't know how cold the Western final is going to be.

"It's probably going to be cold. It's good to get outside and practise in it and get a feel for the ball and how your footing is going to be."

Either the Edmonton Eskimos or Saskatchewan Roughriders will stand in the way of Calgary getting to the Grey Cup in Vancouver on Nov. 30. The victor emerging from Sunday's division semi-final in Edmonton will have won an icy playoff game to advance.

Calgary went 15-3 this year to match a franchise record for wins in a season. The Stampeders clinched first in the division with three games still to play in the regular season.

But prior to beating the B.C. Lions indoors in Friday's season finale, Calgary looked ordinary in its last home game at McMahon Stadium. In the driving snow, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers scored 15 of their points off turnovers in an 18-13 win in Week 19.

It was shades of last year's division final at McMahon. With temperatures also in the minus-teens, the host Stampeders turned the ball over seven times in a 35-13 loss to the Roughriders. It was a disappointing conclusion to a 14-4 season.

Saskatchewan quarterback Darian Durant said following the division championship: "We think the weather played a factor in their ball security."

So instead of piling on layers Tuesday, Calgary middle linebacker Juwan Simpson was dressed relatively light to simulate his game-day garb.

"Normally I'd have one, two hoodies, two pairs of sweats, but this year I'll take a different approach and try and get accustomed to it," Simpson said.

Stampeders head coach John Hufnagel intends to give his players a reprieve from the elements this week by keeping them off the field Thursday.

The most significant advantage of Calgary's bye week is the return of reinforcements from injury.

Defensive lineman Demonte Bolden practised with the team Tuesday for the first time since breaking his leg Sept. 13 against Toronto. Defensive end and sack specialist Charleston Hughes, who injured his foot in that same game, is expected back on the field Friday.

Running back Jon Cornish and receiver Maurice Price are working their way through concussion protocols back to full participation in practice.

Stampeders rewarded

A career-best outing earned Marquay McDaniel the CFL's offensive player of the week honour Tuesday.

- The Calgary receiver had 12 catches for 165 yards in the club's season-ending 33-16 win over the B.C. Lions.
- Stampeders defensive back Keon Raymond was named the top defensive player with an interception and forced fumble and rookie defensive lineman Quinn Smith captured top Canadian honours after posting three sacks against the Lions.

A CFL quarterback soap opera

Semifinals. Three of four starters — and some subs — may not get into any action

The status of Mike Reilly and three other quarterbacks makes for some very interesting storylines heading into the CFL playoffs.

The 12-6 Eskimos host the 10-8 Saskatchewan Roughriders in the West Division semifinal Sunday with the winner to visit Calgary in the division final Nov. 23. But there is uncertainty regarding who'll be under centre for Edmonton.

Reilly was the starter for all 12 of Edmonton's victories this season but there are reports he suffered a broken bone in his foot during the Eskimos' 37-3 win over the B.C. Lions on Nov. 1.

If the six-foot-three, 230-pound Reilly can't play, Matt Nichols will start for Edmonton. Nichols is a five-year CFL veteran but 0-3 as a starter this season.

Hopeful

"I think having those guys in either order is good."

Riders coach Corey Chamblin speaking about having Durant or Joseph to start.

Eskimos GM Ed Hervey was unavailable for comment Tuesday. On Monday, he told Edmonton radio station 630 CHED that the club was still gathering medical information on Reilly but "we do have reason to be concerned."

Matt Scott was their third-string quarterback against Saskatchewan. If neither Reilly nor third-stringer Pat White (who suffered a recent head injury) can play Sunday, the Eskimos will have to find a new No. 3 behind Scott.

Edmonton isn't the only team with quarterback issues.

The Saskatchewan Roughriders have begun their playoff preparations unsure whether incumbent Darian Durant or veteran Kerry Joseph will start in Edmonton. Durant hasn't played since Sept. 7 after suffering an elbow injury in a 30-24 win over Winnipeg.

There's also quarterback news in the East Division semifinal involving B.C. and the Montreal Alouettes. The Lions have placed veteran Travis Lulay on their 46-man roster, allowing him to resume practising.

Lulay, who guided B.C. to the '11 Grey Cup title, re-injured his right shoulder Sept. 5 in a win over Ottawa. It was Lulay's first start in almost a year after returning from a right shoulder injury that sidelined him last season.

Lulay's status for Sunday's game will be determined on how he practises but the expectation is Kevin Glennwill take the snaps in Montreal.

Montreal is the only semi-finalist without quarterback issues. Jonathan Crompton is 8-2 as a starter for the Alouettes, who are coming off a 29-15 road loss to Hamilton on Saturday that relegated them to second in the East.

Vanessa-Mae was on the fiddle: FIS

Pop violinist Vanessa-Mae was banned from competitive skiing for four years on Tuesday for taking part in races that were fixed to allow her to qualify for the Winter Olympics in Sochi.

The findings by the International Ski Federation exposed as a sham what many fans thought was a feel-good celebrity Olympic story.

FIS also banned five race officials from Slovenia and Italy for between one and two years for their role in the scandal.

"At first we were laughing when we heard it. But then we realized it's quite a serious thing," said FIS president Gian Franco Kasper.

FIS said its hearing panel "found to its comfortable satisfaction" that the status of four women's giant slalom races were manipulated in January in Slovenia, just before the games.

FIS detailed several rule-breaking incidents that rigged results to help the then 35-year-old Vanessa-Mae falsely improve her racer status near the Olympic entry deadline.

Without the cheating orchestrated by her managers, Vanessa-Mae "would not have achieved the necessary FIS point performance level to be eligible to participate," the governing body said.

In February at the Sochi Games, the celebrity musician who was raised in Britain raced for Thailand as Vanessa Vanakorn, using the last name of her Thai father. She finished last of 67 racers in the two-run giant slalom, almost a minute behind gold medallist Tina Maze of Slovenia. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Moyes signs with Real Sociedad

Spanish club Real Sociedad hired former Manchester United manager David Moyes on Monday, giving the Scotsman a chance to revive his career after his failed stint at Old Trafford.

Sociedad posted a statement on its website saying it had "reached a deal with manager David Moyes to be the coach of the first team until June 30, 2016."

It is Moyes' first coaching assignment since being fired last season after less than a year in charge at United, where he took the top job after Alex Ferguson retired. Moyes had moved to United after spending more than a decade at Everton, where he established a reputation as one of the top British managers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

2015 Volkswagen Jetta

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel-drive compact sedan
- Engines. 2.0-litre I4 (115 hp), 2.0-litre I4 diesel (140), 1.8-litre I4 turbo (170)
- Transmissions. Five-speed manual, 6-speed automatic, 6-speed DSG automatic
- Price. $16,385 base, $29,785 as tested

Market position

Previously a premium compact, new generation in 2011 repositioned Jetta as one of the regular compact guys in an effort to boost sales. It worked, but Jetta still trails the perennial chart-toppers: Honda Civic, Hyundai Elantra, Toyota Corolla, and Mazda3. Bigger than most, especially in trunk volume.

Points

- Mid-cycle revisions for 2015 include a new Passat-like front fascia, with bi-xenon and LED lighting, and active grille shutters.
- Built in Mexico, on same platform as Golf.
- Three very different engine offerings: a venerable and durable 2.0-litre, a new and smooth 1.8-litre turbo with direct injection, or a new and very advanced TDI (diesel).

Volkswagen has upgraded the Jetta's comfortable interior.

Interesting features

LED lights in headlamp cluster activate when turning corners, to widen your lighting path by 13 more degrees. New standard rear-view camera concealed in trunk latch. New optional safety systems include blind-spot detection, cross-traffic alert, and crash-response system, which alert the driver to take action.

Performance trumps appearance

Review. Jetta's looks won't get young fans swooning, but its silky smooth ride will have many drivers crooning

MIKE GOETZ
drive@metronews.ca

Some nameplates present a consistent personality to the world through every generational overhaul. Volkswagen's Jetta is not one of them.

Originally a tidy, premium compact, with a European and sporty flavour, it became a more mainstream North American product back in 2011, with an overhaul that made it larger and less premium.

This was done to bring it more into line with its rivals. But those rivals have been going the other way — offering more premium styling, performance, comfort and features. So VW has updated Jetta with a more sophisticated rear suspension and better brakes. As a result, its on-road dynamics are now a positive feature.

It also got a great new engine option last year: the 1.8-litre TSI four-cylinder with direct injection and turbo-charging. This engine is silky smooth and powerful, and offers very decent fuel economy.

The 2015 Jetta is also the first model to offer VW's new 2.0-litre TDI diesel engine.

Other changes include new front and rear styling updates — including optional headlamp clusters with banks of LEDs that have the ability to shed light around the corner you're entering.

The exterior changes won't transform Jetta into an object of vehicle lust — few young auto fans hang posters of Jettas on their bedroom walls. But the chunky and upright body design is very good at other things — like outward visibility and the ability to carry five people in top comfort. Jetta's trunk also continues to be the largest in this class.

VW has also been gradually upgrading the low-rent interior, which was part of that 2011 redesign. For 2015, a back-up camera is now standard, and buyers can choose to upgrade the cabin with soft-touch materials, ambient lighting, piano-black accents, and a two-tone treatment (ceramique and titan black).

It's an entirely comfortable place, with intuitive switchgear, but it remains a step behind competitors in connectivity and infotainment. For instance, there is no USB port.

The automatic transmission paired with the 1.8 TSI engine is a conventional six-speed, while the TDI is paired with a DSG automatic.

The overall refinement of the TSI pairing greatly contributed to a premium feel, as did the seats.

Overall, I give the 2015 VW Jetta an enthusiastic vote of approval.

Compare

1 Honda Civic
Base price: $17,278
Best selling car in Canada, and always a safe bet.

2 Chevrolet Cruze
Base price:$17,795
Jetta and Cruze are the only current compacts to offer diesel power options.

3 Dodge Dart
Base price: $16,059
Another big compact, like Jetta. Good on-road dynamics.

DRIVE

To be clear, that's just the last coat of paint

Driving Force. The shiny surface of modern vehicles is composed of several layers of paints and protective materials

JIL MCINTOSH
drive@metronews.ca

From the initial electrostatic coating to the final clear coat over the paint, a vehicle's finish can be many layers deep. FORD

People commonly say a car has a "coat of paint," but there's a lot more to it than that. That shiny surface is actually several separate coats, all of which add special properties to the final finish.

"When you look at a car, what you're typically touching and feeling on the majority of them is clear coat," says Bill Suzuki, technical service representative for 3M's automotive aftermarket division. "It's a clear paint that's made to enhance the gloss of the colour and maintain better UV stability to guard against dulling."

Steel for the car's body comes into the factory already galvanized, but the automaker will add an electrostatic coating, "which is the primary defence against the steel corroding," Suzuki says.

The next coat is primer. It provides some protection itself, but its main purpose is to create a uniform surface for the paint.

Some of the car's lower parts, such as the rockers under the doors, may be sprayed with a rubberized undercoating that's known as rock guard. Applied over the primer, but under the paint, it helps protect the car from rocks and gravel thrown up by the wheels.

The next stage is the paint, which gives the car its colour. On older vehicles, this used to be the final coat. It was known as single-stage paint and it gave the car both its colour and its glossy finish, but was prone to oxidation and weathering.

On a hot day, especially with red paint that was a few years old and oxidized, touching the car could often stain your hand.

On today's cars, the paint is dull after it's dried and heat-cured, and that final clear coat gives the finish its shine. Depending on the colour, the car may need a few different coats of paint under the clear coat, which can give it a pearlescent sheen.

If the car is damaged and needs to be repainted, the body shop has to repair the finish to match the rest of the paint. Good preparation is essential: not only does any bodyfiller have to be sanded absolutely smooth so the panel looks straight, but the layers of primer, paint and clear coat have to match and adhere to the existing paint.

"We sand areas to be painted because it increases the surface area for the paint to grab onto," Suzuki says. "If it's not scuffed, you could get into problems with paint adhesion. You have to make the panel look a lot worse before you make it look better."

Paint protection

- Some colour fading does happen over time, and repair shops have to match the new paint to the old. Some paint manufacturers have optical machines that will read the car's surface and determine the new paint's formula.
- Companies such as 3M make urethane paint-protection films and sprays, sometimes called clear bras, that adhere to the car to protect the finish.
- Keeping the car clean and waxing it regularly will help the paint stay shiny longer.

Gunning for a sporty compromise

Victory Gunner. Bike combines power and agility with comfort

MARISSA BAECKER
drive@metronews.ca

My mission, should I choose to accept it, contained words about security, keeping things top-secret and some other stealth lingo. After reading its entirety, I fully expected my email to self-destruct.

But I was off to Daytona Beach to test-ride the all-new 2015 Victory Gunner, which has a starting price of $14,499.

The bike stood out for its stealth matte gun-metal looks and its sleek, smooth, design. The signature Victory tank smoothly flows into the frame, making the silhouette appear as one line. This edgy bobber has basic instruments and lighting, but detailed styling and ergonomics.

The looks are similar to the 2014 Victory Judge, but two areas that came up short with that bike appear to be addressed on the Gunner — my reach is a perfect distance to the bars and my legs rest comfortably on the forward controls.

The Gunner has drag-style bars — wide and ideal for sweeping turns and touring comfort, but a bit of a stretch for tighter corners.

Riding without a shield is surprisingly effortless, perhaps due in part to the low seating position of 25 inches. The controls are forward enough to accommodate the longer-legged but not so far forward as to tilt the pelvis.

With only four inches of ground clearance, it is no wonder that the pegs come standard with scrape bars. Riding through traffic, my rubber-soled boots stuck to the pegs more than once.

As I made my way through the first half of the 6-speed transmission, the 106-cubic-inch V-twin delivered instant power.

In fourth and fifth gears, the power came later in the rpm. So much so that I did not feel the need for sixth gear, as I was already doing 120 km/h and still had plenty of room. "You need to be flying at around 140 km/h to need sixth" one rider said.

The test-ride continued back home in the Okanagan, on a Gunner equipped with a single exhaust pipe. MARISSA BAECKER

This 1,731-cc powerhouse is smooth with a telescopic front fork, although the rear shock is a little tougher over the bumps.

With beefy Dunlop tires, I expected to have to muscle the Gunner around somewhat, but was pleasantly surprised with the agility of this 660-pound beast.

At higher speeds, the ride seemed to be much bouncier, but it was difficult to decipher whether the tires or the suspension was to blame.

The skyline was barely shrinking in my side mirrors when the phone in my pocket began to light up. I peeled off at the next exit and pulled over.

Apparently, my Gunner was late for a beauty pageant. A photo shoot had been scheduled and the one I was so comfortably enjoying had a few extra bells and whistles specifically installed for photographs. My mission was being recalled.

Back in B.C., a few days later, I found another Gunner at the local Victory dealership and arranged to take it for the afternoon to finish my review.

Opening up the throttle on Hwy. 97, I immediately noticed the roar of the pipes. I didn't remember the first Gunner having that aggressive attitude, so I took a closer look. This Gunner had Cobra two-into-one pipes in place of the stock dual exhaust. What a difference!

The 2015 Victory Gunner is the perfect bike for the aging sport rider who still wants the power and agility of a sport bike without compromising the comfort and longevity of a cruiser.

Shift: From hybrids, technology, new vehicles and the environment, to saving money at the pumps

Proposed four-door version of VW's XL1 will still sip fuel

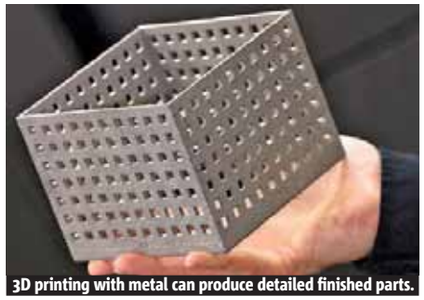
Volkswagen has put a four-door, four-seat version of the XL1 — its hyper-high-mileage laboratory-on-wheels — on the drawing board, says Britain's Autocar magazine. VW might have more in mind for the groundbreaking XL1 than merely mining it for advances to improve the next-generation Golf. Autocar projects that the changes necessary to move the XL1 into four-passenger territory could raise its weight to 940 kilograms from its current 795, with speculation that the rear seats would be staggered, as is the case with the fronts. Crucially, the magazine thinks the extra weight wouldn't greatly change the two-seater XL1's 0.9 L/100 km rating, "with tech tweaks and the aerodynamic benefit of a longer car" largely offsetting the four-door's greater capacity.

ALL STORIES AND PHOTOS FROM WHEELBASEMEDIA.COM

Although this proposed four-door version of Volkswagen's XL1 weighs more than the two-door, it could still achieve a similar 0.9 L/100 km with tech tweaks and the aerodynamic benefits of a longer car.

Converting power more efficiently with the aid of 3D printing

A new development at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee could help build electric cars that are more powerful and energy-efficient. A smaller, lighter power inverter marries advances in 3D printing with new semiconductor technology. Power inverters are an essential part of any electric vehicle, explains Gizmag, as they take direct current stored in the battery pack and turn it into alternating current that feeds the motor. The lab also used 3D printing to build about half of the inverter's parts, which allowed the scientists to reduce weight and be more flexible in controlling heat.



3D printing with metal can produce detailed finished parts.

Shift points

- Porsche's limited-run 918 Spyder plug-in hybrid supercar is almost sold out, despite requiring a $200,000 US deposit against its $847,975 price tag. Only 918 copies will be built, and so far, only about 30 have been delivered to buyers around the world, reports Automotive News.
- Nissan entered the commercial zero-emissions vehicle market in October when it launched its plug-in electric e-NV200 van in Japan. It uses technology developed through its first zero-emissions vehicle, the Leaf sedan. No word yet on whether it will come to North America.

Toyota readies a competitor for the Nissan Juke

The success of Nissan's Juke compact tall wagon has not gone unnoticed by its arch-nemesis Toyota, which showed its C-HR concept at the Paris auto show. Australia's CarAdvice reports that the C-HR will spawn a production small utility vehicle to do battle with not just the Juke, but also other all-wheel-drive small wagon/hatchbacks, including the Buick Encore, Chevrolet Trax and the upcoming Honda HR-V. Toyota Europe sales group executive vice-president Karl Schlicht confirmed that the world's largest automaker will build a vehicle based on the highly stylized C-HR, which is a three-door hatchback with an exaggerated version of the styling theme seen on recent Toyota models like the 2015 Camry, Corolla and Yaris.

The C-HR concept clearly shows that the Nissan Juke was the inspiration.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
If you keep an open mind about a money matter you will see opportunities others are likely to overlook. You will be surprised how easy it is to turn a profit.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
The pressure is beginning to mount. You feel there are things in your life that need to be changed, and you are right. If you cannot change them yourself, fate will do it for you.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
The longer you allow something that annoys you to continue the worse it will get, so speak up and, if necessary, provoke a showdown.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Are you happy with who you are and what you are doing with your life? If so, why are you so concerned what other people think about you?

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You worry that you are being forced to move in a direction you don't want to go. In which case you have no alternative but to dig in your heels and refuse to budge another inch.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Trivial issues will bother you less over the next 24 hours, and as Mercury, your ruler and planet of the mind, is linked with Neptune in a positive way your imaginative powers will soar.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The answer to a problem will become crystal clear today. You may have to pay out more than you expected but it's worth it if it sets you free.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
You can apparently talk your way out of any difficult situation at the moment. Be that as it may, don't say things you know are not true for the fun of it.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Your problem seems to be you are trying to do everything at once. The kind of changes you envisage will take a long time to bring about, so pace yourself.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Whatever you do today don't lose your temper, even if you have a right to be annoyed. You will be able to express yourself in a more positive fashion on Friday and over the weekend.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Sometimes you have to take centre stage when the cosmic script calls for it, and it is calling for it today. Let everyone see who you are, what you believe in and what you can do.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
It's OK to change your opinion in the light of new information and with mind planet Mercury strong in your chart you will find it easy to update your views. But don't change every few hours.
